CALCIUM CLUB SCORES

University Students Present "Girl and the Page."

BROWN AND SCHNEIDER STARS

Former Carries Off Large Amount of Honors in Leading Role, While Latter is Applauded for Splendid Dancing in Part of "Goat"—Every Original Number Applauded.

At the Belasco Theater last night the Calcium Club repeated its success of Thursday evening.

The show—"The Girl and the Page"—is one of those musical comedies which are an ever-changing kaleidoscope of color, costumes, and good fun, with songs and dances interspersed.

Following the usual musical comedy lines, the theme was left largely to the imagination of the audience. What there was of it seemed to be about a "goat"—or neophyte—of a fraternity who was being "put through" the usual stunts of initiation. This gave the piece a college atmosphere—although the scene was at a summer resort. The characters were largely college men and girls, and the snap and vim of the students lost nothing in their delineation by these young men—themselves students at George Washington University.

Jesse Browne was cast in the role of Arthur Sutton, the leader in the initiation of the "page," and to say that he carried off a large part of the honors would be putting it mildly. His acting was excellent. He has a splendid voice, which was heard to the best effect in his songs, "It's Jolly to Go to the Seashore," "There's Nothing Like Love After All," and "My Maiden from Old Va."

That he was able to dance as well as sing and act was proven by his interpolation of a burlesque "Boston," and his waltz with young Schneider in the "Love" song. This was the first of a large number of dancing specialties, all of which pleased the audience.

Schneider Scores Hit. In the part of Teddy Thornbrooke, the "goat," who is made to play the part of the page, James D. Schneider was entirely up to the requirements. The majority of the humor fell to his share, and it is to his credit that he was able to get most of it across very well. Somewhat shy in voice, he made up for it amply by his personality and humor. His several dances were excellently given.

A. A. Moore was Gov. Thornbrooke, Teddy's father, and though he did not appear until the last act, he succeeded in winning a large amount of applause with his "It's Good to Be the Governor," probably the most catchy piece of the play, and his duet with Mrs. X. Hale, "A Widow Should Know."

W. T. Coburn contributed much of the funny dancing. His dance with Blackie in "She's Not for You" was undoubtedly the hit of the piece. The couple were encircled time and again until they were forced to stop from exhaustion.

Another dance worthy of notice was contributed by George Graham, as Jack Johnson, the waiter who never speaks a word, but who was responsible for a large amount of the comedy.

C. B. Kaiser and R. B. Blackley were the two daughters of Herr Lipp, and their delineation of the two love-sick maidens was excellent. Roswell Dague had the rich comedy part of Mrs. X. Hale, the lady with the suffragette ideas. His comedy was clever and his only song good.

Others Give Specialties. Others in the cast who pleased were Kilbourn Gordon, Carl H. Butman, Hugh H. Saum, and Semaj Leno, all of whom contributed specialties. Praise is due the author, Philip Scantling, who, although he had no acting part in the production, contributed two songs, "Ma Belle Estelle" and the opening chorus of the second act. His voice, as always, was clear and fine and his work was roundly applauded.

The cast. Jesse D. Browne. Arthur Sutton. A. P. D. Q. ringleader in Teddy's initiation and "the ride of the beach." Soph at Winston University.

"Teddy" Thornbrooke. James D. Schneider. Page at the Outside Inn; the "goat," son of Gov. Richard Thornbrooke, of Montana.

Gov. Richard Thornbrooke. A. A. Moore. Governor of Montana and wealthy.

"Ben" Stokes. Kilbourn Gordon. An alumnus of Winston University, a P. D. Q. and the loquacious manager of the Outside Inn.

Herr Lipp. Carl H. Butman. A Virginia girl looking for a "dignified man." Mrs. X. Hale. Roswell Dague. Just appearing on woman's suffrage.

Pierre (Chauncey). Semaj Leno. A French wine merchant who has loved and lost. "Dick" Dickenson. W. T. Coburn.

Ponies—Hendler, Robinson, R. Moore, Ellison, Chasick, and others.

Vassar girls—Crawford, Guapo, J. F. Moore, Haller, Meyers, Treat, Manning, Forbes, Kunkle, Marsh, and others.

Bell boys—O'Brien, Treat, and Coburn.

Maids—Haller, Blackley, and Hendler.

Platitudes—Black, Prince, Campbell, Hart, Naylor, Simpson, Brewster, Galbraith, G. Moore, Mathews, Cash, Will, Weber, and Cady.

The performance will be repeated Tuesday evening for the benefit of Messrs. Harris and Pryor, treasurer and assistant treasurer of the Belasco Theater.

BIGGEST OIL GUSHER STRUCK.

Lake View Well in California Gives 39,000 Barrels Daily.

Surpassing the capacity of the big Beaumont gushers, the largest oil gusher in the world has been struck at the McKittick well, in California. It is the Lake View well, and according to statistics of the United States Geological Survey, it is flowing daily at a rate of 39,000 barrels a day.

It cost $15,000 to sink the well, and to date has produced about $80,000 worth of oil. Another big gusher, with a capacity of 25,000 barrels daily, was struck recently in Southern California, but is now undergoing repairs, owing to an explosion. Oil production in California has forced gold to take second place, the total output in 1909 amounting to $30,000,000.

ELABORATE PLANS FOR HOMECOMING

Committee Seeks Support of Chamber of Commerce.

With tentative plans for homecoming week indorsed by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Isaac Gans, chairman of the committee arranging for the celebration, will ask the indorsement of the full Chamber next Tuesday night.

Mr. Gans said yesterday that developments already have indicated the event may be made such a big success that he is desirous of the pledged support of all the members of the Chamber.

While the directors were presented with the general plans that have been made for homecoming week, it is announced these plans, worked out in detail, will be laid before the members of the Chamber on Tuesday.

Many features suggested for the week's entertainment will be presented, and, if adopted by the members of the Chamber, they will be formally incorporated in the programme.

Altogether, the claim is made that the plans to be unfolded Tuesday night, will be in the nature of a revelation to the members of the Chamber, and a big crowd is expected to be on hand to consider them, preparatory to their final adoption.

BANKER BUYS HOUSE.

D. J. Ambler Acquires Residence at 2112 Bancroft Place.

Daniel J. Ambler, a retired banker, of Tampa, Fla., has bought the handsome dwelling in Bancroft place, west of Connecticut avenue, numbered 2112. This is one of the four residences recently completed in this street by Harry Wardman, and was sold through Shannon & Luchs. The consideration was $21,000.

The house contains fourteen rooms and three baths, and is of the colonial design, with kitchen on the first floor. All floors throughout the entire house are of the parquet style, and the home is heated by hot water.

Mr. Ambler will occupy the property within a
